MAKE HAY WHILE THE SUN SHINES

Youth is the Sun-Time of your life. It is the time when you should lay away something regularly for the time when you need it.
Just as the Farmer in the summer gathers his crops and stores them for use in the winter when nature does not produce, so should you prepare for the day when your productive power ceases.
This bank is at your service in helping to evolve a plan of saving suited to your needs.

MODERN DAY MIRACLES

How Twentieth Century Scientists Have Rubbed the Magi's Lamp and Made the Age-old Dream of Alchemy Come True

(Told in Eight Sketches) By JOHN RAYMOND

THE AGE OF CHEMISTRY

Within the last few years the world has been electrified by the vast strides made in the field of science by the creative chemist. Indeed, within a generation the influence exerted upon the entire fabric of our civilization from within the laboratory has been so enormous that we are prepared at last to accept the oft-repeated statement that we have passed beyond the age of machinery and have entered into the more mysterious age of chemistry.

What this new era is to bring forth in the way of scientific discovery rests upon conjecture, but certainly, the miracles performed in the last half century have been sufficient to warrant almost any expectancy.

America has heard that Germany's chemists saved her from an early disastrous defeat, both in the field and in the matter of obtaining supplies. Without the tremendous expansion of her plants for the production of nitrates and ammonia from the air by processes developed by her great chemists the war, without question, would have ended years before it did, as a result of the exhaustion of Germany's explosives, if not from the lack of fertilizer for her fields.

So great, in fact, have been the accomplishments of the last few years that scientists now declare that a nation without applied chemistry will be "defenseless in war and laggards in peace."

Previously unheard of scientific feats have been reported from the laboratory, but because of necessity, they were performed so quietly they were robbed of their glamor and their trappings of romance while lesser achievements on the field of battle and in the council chambers of diplomats have been hailed by throngs.

Those of us who have left the classroom and the study hall far behind find it difficult, lacking technical knowledge, to comprehend this swift transition from one era to another, an amazing period when the nations of the world are making serious plans to scrap their worthless armaments and navies, depending for protection against injury upon the instantly upon the subtle but deadly material.

From this black, sticky mass he adorns Mady with colors rivaling nature itself in their barbaric splendor. He distills perfumes that equal the jasmine and he makes terrifying gases that one day will make war unthinkable. Thousands of articles upon which we depend, from TNT to painting blocks, from attar of roses to fertilizer, and from illumination gas to royal purple, are derived from the same substance.

As recently as 1700 a man who dared to say that he could produce a ruby from a lump of coal would have been accused of practicing the black art and doubtless would have ended his career at the stake. In three centuries we have gone far. To-day we accept these miracles but few of us know how the miracles are wrought. And yet there is no mystery.

The succeeding sketches will show how the accidental discovery of an English boy at work in a laboratory in 1820 started the development of creative chemistry, and will tell how it is possible to produce a silk purse, a bottle of perfume, the colors of the rainbow, a variety of medicines, food-stuffs and poisons, all from the same material.

MEDICAL ALUMNI OF VA. UNIVERSITY GIVES OPINION

Hot Springs, Arkansas, December 21.—Here in Arkansas it has not been considered that Little Rock, with a population of 65,000, is large enough to provide the requisite clinical facilities for a full medical course, so the State University attempts only giving the first two years of medicine. In Virginia a Commission has recommended the merger of two State-aided medical colleges, one of which is now located in Richmond, a city about three times the size of the Little Rock, and the other at Charlottesville, a town about one-sixth the size of this city. The Commission recommended Richmond as the location for the merged colleges, but there is strong objection to this on the part of some of the University people.

That all medical alumni of the University of Virginia are not in sympathy with the movement to retain the medical department of the University at Charlottesville, and that they want the effort to make them subscribe to a fund for aiding such a campaign, are clearly made evident by a letter written by Major John P. Long, M. D. of the Medical Corps of the Army, who has charge of the Army and Navy General Hospital here.

In an open letter to Dr. Hugh H. Young of Johns Hopkins Hospital who has been soliciting subscriptions Dr. Long says that his failure to pay any attention to the first appeal was not due to any unwillingness to subscribe to a worthy cause but for more "hazy" reasons. Having received a second appeal he felt it incumbent upon him to give the reasons.

He said: "Has it ever occurred to you that other alumni might hold different opinions from those who desire to adhere to the old order of things? Admitting that some changes for the better have been made since the date of my graduation (1897), I am still of the opinion that the more important change for the improvement of the Medical School of the University of Virginia would be the establishment of the last two years of the course in a city of the size of Richmond or Norfolk."

Colds & Headache

"For years we have used Black-Draught in our family, and I have never found any medicine that could take its place," writes Mr. H. A. Stacy, of Bradyville, Tenn. Mr. Stacy, who is a Rutherford County farmer, recommends Black-Draught as a medicine that should be kept in every household for use in the prompt treatment of many little ills to prevent them from developing into serious troubles.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

"It touches the liver and does the work," Mr. Stacy declared. "It is one of the best medicines I ever saw for a cold and headache. I don't know what we would do in our family if it wasn't for Black-Draught. It has saved us many times. I don't see how any family can hardly go without it. I know it is a reliable and splendid medicine to keep in the house. I recommend Black-Draught highly and am never without it."
